Subject: RE: Delivery of GE 104(e) responses to EPA

Dear Ms. Roberts,

Delivery of the documents by mail service or hand delivery would work best for EPA. Our mailroom is in operation and someone there would be able to accept hand-delivery through a courier service during normal business hours. It is up to General Electric as to whether it wants to also provide documents to EPA by electronic means.

Thank you,

Richard

Subject: Delivery of GE 104(e) responses to EPA

Mr. Mednick,

I am working with General Electric to respond to EPA's March 10, 2020 104(e) requests for the Harbor Island East Waterway Operable Unit, for which responses are due this Monday. What is EPA's preference regarding delivery of the documents accompanying GE's responses? While we can email the narrative responses and the index, the documents themselves are quite large altogether.

Would EPA prefer electronic delivery via FTP site, mail delivery of the files on USB to the Region 10 office, or hand delivery of the files on USB to the Region 10 office? I know from my previous experience in government that mail delivery can sometimes be delayed, so I wanted to check with you first.

Thank you,

Rachel K. Roberts
